

Caregiver Lunch and Learn Series

Identifying and Managing Combative Behaviors

Alzheimer's disease and other forms of dementia often presents challenging behavior problems. The anger, sadness, paranoia, confusion and fear that those with the disease are experiencing can result in oppositional, aggressive and sometimes violent speech or actions.

Gayle Lancaster, Geriatric Adult Mental Health Specialty Team Qualified Professional, will be discussing how to identify triggers that can cause combative behaviors, as well as which strategies are most effective in dementia behavior management.
